CDG ANNOUNCES RELEASE OF STANDALONE MEDIATION SYSTEM

Champaign, IL – Communications Data Group (CDG) today announced the release of its newly enhanced standalone Mediation system for conquering the challenges associated with collecting data from multiple sources using different formats, protocols and time frames, and then processing and consolidating that data into files for invoicing, accounting, auditing, archiving and reporting. The system can accurately filter, process, track, analyze, audit and distribute your data to improve your revenue assurance, as well as ensuring optimum billing.

CDG's Mediation system is tried and true with 40 years of experience and is in use nationwide. The system offers automated input validation and is compatible with traditional switches, soft switches and VOD servers. It contains flexible business rules, event notification, audit IDs assigned to every file, process scheduling and reporting via dashboards or other specialized studies. It is available as a licensed or online product.

In making this announcement, Bob LaBonté, CEO and President of CDG, noted, "Recognizing that telecom service providers need greater flexibility for mediating their raw data to revenue, CDG is now offering a standalone version of our work-horse Mediation system that can produce billable records for various service types and events for input into any invoicing system. This is a system with a proven track record of accuracy, efficiency and scalability. It's another enhancement to our billing options that emphasizes CDG's determination to provide complete billing and revenue assurance services."

About CDG: CDG offers scalable, accurate billing solutions for voice, video, and data service providers.
